Her late Majesty Queen Elizabeth II was one of the greatest leaders the world has ever known. She came to the throne – at just 25 – in a country that was emerging from the shadow of war. She was the rock on which modern Britain was built and she leaves a modern, dynamic nation that has grown and flourished under her reign.

She has led at times with a quiet determination and selfless devotion. Her dedication to the United Kingdom and commonwealth over the last 70 years has been unwavering and her legacy will be remembered for generations. Her devotion to duty is an example to us all.

Our thoughts are very much with the Royal Family at this time, and we join the nation in thanking Her Majesty for her extraordinary devotion to a lifetime of service to her country and commonwealth.

As once said by the Queen herself ‘Grief is the price we pay for love’
